

EMORY
UNIVERSITY

Neuroethics Program
Emory Center for Ethics

Neuroethics & Neuroscience in the News

Join us for lunch (provided) and a discussion on relevant scholarly work in neuroethics and discussions of neuroethics in the news.

Image credit Greg Berns via Twitter

Title: What it's like to be a dog

Topic: Ethical implications for nonhuman animal research and nonhuman-human relationships.

Speaker: Gregory Berns, Distinguished Professor of Neuroeconomics, Emory

Date: Monday, December 4, 2017 @ 12-1pm

Location: Center for Ethics Room 162

RSVP to akear@emory.edu by Friday, December 1st to reserve your seat.
Seating by RSVP only. Refreshments will be served.