Jacques Arnould

“Catholicism and Evolution: Problem or Opportunity”

When: Tuesday, March 1, 2010, 7:30pm

Where: Ethics Center 102 (Candler School of Theology Building-Emory University)

Uncertain of how you should think about evolution and your faith? Come hear Jacques Arnould, a Catholic historian of science and an ethics advisor to the French Space Agency, CNES, whose research fields are evolution and space exploration. The Académie Française awarded him its 2004 La Bruyère Prize for his book The Devil's Whiskers. The lecture is free and open to the public. For directions and more information on the speaker go to www.aquinas.emory.edu.

Sponsors: Candler School of Theology, Emory Center for Ethics, The Program for Science and Society at Emory.
