

Design Your Own Internship 2022

Interested in participating in Servant Leadership Summer but do not find your interests or passions addressed by the current list of placement sites? Or, maybe you already have an organization where you are interning or volunteering and want the opportunity for deeper and structured engagement. If so, then design your own Servant Leadership Summer internship.

Students with interests in areas not served by the current partners are welcome to write an application focusing on an area of work or organization of particular interest and concern to them. Essays for the “Design Your Own Internship” should identify clearly the type of organization or area of focus in which the student is interested.

While the student you can submit a “Design Your Own Internship” application without having an organization already having agreed to accept you as an intern, those students who have such a commitment will receive priority.

Students who have identified an organization with which they wish to work (or have a commitment from an organization) should state that fact clearly in the application, along with the level of conversation (if any) the student has had with the organization or the level of commitment from the organization.

Any questions about applying for a “Design Your Own Internship” should be directed to Edward Queen at equeen@emory.edu.
